Dr Caroline Siegel, LL.M.

Specialist lawyer for employment law

Caroline advises employers and employees on the establishment and structuring of employment relationships, their management and termination; her practice focuses on advising companies on restructuring measures, transfers of undertakings and reorganisation measures as well as issues of temporary employment and secondment of employees and negotiations with employee representatives (works councils, trade unions, co-determined supervisory boards). Caroline also advises and trains employers on issues relating to (sector specific) minimum wages and cooperation with customers authorities, social security benefits offices and professional associations.

In the area of compliance she advises on the implementation of guidelines, their drafting in collaboration with works councils, and the prosecution of labour law violations for companies.
